A. VIIème Biennale de l'Art Bantu contemporain

Le Jury de la VIIème Biennale de l'Art Bantu Contemporain, organisée dans le cadre du 50ème anniversaire de l'Ecole de Peinture de Poto-Poto, s'est réuni à Brazzaville les 23 et 25 novembre 2002.

Après un échange enrichissant de points de vue sur les critères esthétiques à utiliser et une restructuration de la grille des prix, le Jury a délibéré en fonction des objectifs de promotion des principales expressions plastiques de la sous-région, des nouveaux essais techniques, de nouvelles représentations thématiques, du contexte célébratif de la VIIème Biennale et du thème général de l'exposition « Pour l'Union Africaine ».

Le Jury a aussi tenu compte de la nécessité d'encourager les talents féminins et les artistes jeunes. Après délibérations, le Jury a décidé d'établir le palmarès de la VIIème Biennale. Les principaux prix ont été attribués comme suit :

- Le Premier Grand Prix de Peinture « Président de la République du Congo » d'une valeur de deux millions francs (2.000.000) CFA, à ILOKI (Junior), peintre de la deuxième génération de l'Ecole de Peinture de Poto-Poto, pour sa toile « Bras soudés ».
- le Grand Prix de Sculpture « Président de la République du Congo » d'une valeur de deux millions francs (2.000.000 CFA), à Joao Domingos MABUACA « MAYEMBE » de l'Angola, pour sa sculpture sur bois intitulé « Sonho de liberdade ».

La liste détaillée de tous les prix attribués peut être obtenue auprès de M. Simao SOUINDOULA, CICIBA

D. Swedish International Development Co-operation Agency (Sida) with Africa in the field of culture Africa

<http://www.sida.org/Sida/jsp/Crosslink.jsp?d=160>

The overall goal of Swedish development cooperation is to raise the standard of living of poor people in the world. The Swedish Parliament has adopted the following six specific objectives to achieve this overall goal:

- Economic growth
- Economic and political independence
- Economic and social equality
- Democratic development in society
- The long-term sustainable use of natural resources and protection of the environment
- Equality between men and women

Development co-operation in the field of culture

In the wide sense of the term culture embraces the whole complex of spiritual, material, intellectual and emotional features that characterise a society or social group and that include modes of life, religious beliefs and ethics.

Culture can be said to be another word for human development. It is a question of how we perceive and understand our history and the age we are living in today, and how we use this perception and understanding to organise our lives and live together. We take part in the shaping of our culture and, at the same time, we ourselves are shaped by it. This description of culture and, at the same time, we ourselves are shaped by it. This description of culture is in line with the principles contained in the report Our creative Diversity (1995) from the World Commission for Culture and Development, and with the action plan which was adopted by the Stockholm conference The Power of Culture (1998).

New approach to culture, the media and development

In 1981 the Swedish Government decided to start a pilot programme of cultural support to developing countries. The view of culture exclusively as a means for development has been extended since then. Today culture is regarded as a goal in itself.

Sweden was one of the first countries to give culture a special position in governmental development co-operation. Sweden has supported the World Decade of Cultural Development through the UN and the World Commission for Culture and Development, and hosted the world conference The Power of Culture in Stockholm in 1998. This conference urged UN member states to adopt the following five goals for their culture policies:

- to make cultural policy one of the key components of development strategy
- to promote creativity and participation in cultural life
- to reinforce policy and practice to safeguard and enhance the cultural heritage and to promote cultural industries
- to promote cultural and linguistic diversity in and for the information society
- to make more human and financial resources available for cultural development

In the 1990s Swedish media support has also developed and expanded. Its main focus has been on protecting freedom of speech by supporting the reform of legislation, contributing to research, making freedom of action possible for journalists and the media, and supporting networks between journalists, nationally and regionally. Supporting the media in their critical examination and for their educational potential is seen today as an important part of Swedish development co-operation for the promotion of democracy and human rights.

Culture in the regional and national development co-operation strategies

In many cases the Swedish aid strategies make explicit reference to culture as a possible or priority field of co-operation as for example in the case of West Africa, Botswana, Mozambique

In the case of South Africa, in the chapter concerning culture and media the country strategy stress that „Culture was an important weapon in the struggle against oppression during the Apartheid period. Many black South Africans, however, lack the formal knowledge necessary to be able to manage museums, theatres etc. in a democratic society. Cooperation between Swedish and South African cultural institutions therefore forms an important part of support to the culture sector.

Swedish support includes:

- Cooperation between Gothenburg College of Music and South African music institutions and between Stockholm City Theatre and a stage school connected to The Market Theatre in Johannesburg.
- South African organisations which train children in art, drama and dance.
- District Six Museum which documents and dramatises the compulsory relocations which took place during the Apartheid period.
- Robben Island Museum for further training of museum.”

In the framework of the co-operation with Tanzania Sweden is supporting the co-operation between culture and the media, among others through the community theatre focusing on children and young people, which has given 10 000 children the chance to pass on their messages to a much wider audience thanks to festivals and the mass media. Support for regional networks is increasing cultural exchange and trade cooperation across national borders. A certain amount of support has also been given to culture and the media on a regional level.

The Council for Development Research

Each year, Sida via its Developing Country Research Council publishes notice of support for Swedish developing country research. The aim is to establish and maintain a knowledge base of relevance to aid and development issues, plus capacity for developing country research in Sweden.

Individual researchers or groups of researchers working at universities and colleges or other research institutions in Sweden may apply for a grant. Swedish citizens working at the Scandinavian Institute for Asian Studies (Nordiska Asieninstitutet, NIAS) in Copenhagen may also apply.

Contributions are awarded only to applicants (project managers) who hold doctorates. Researchers with supervisory skills (professors, senior lecturers or similar) may apply for grants for doctoral candidates.

Most of the funding is allocated by means of open application for research of relevance to developing countries. We also welcome applications within invitation fields of particular significance to the funding in question.

Sida's Agency for Research Cooperation with Developing countries, SAREC, is responsible for dealing with these matters. Our task is to support the development of developing countries.

Applications for funding are permitted only for projects relating to areas in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Applications will be handled within one of the following five scientific reference groups, consisting of Swedish and Nordic researchers:

- Humanities, education and culture
- Health research
- Natural resources and the environment
- Natural sciences, technology and industrialisation
- Development issues and social sciences

F. Nordic Africa Institute

<http://www.nai.uu.se/indexeng.html>

The Nordic Africa Institute in Uppsala was founded in 1962. It is financed jointly by the Nordic countries. It is a Swedish authority where the overall responsibility for its management and work rests with the Director and a Programme and Research Council consisting of representatives from both the governments and the research communities of the five Nordic countries. According to its statutes, the Nordic Africa Institute "...is charged, within the Nordic countries, with:

- furthering and carrying out scientific research on Africa;
- furthering co-operation and contacts between Nordic and African researchers;
- serving as a documentation centre for research and studies on Africa;
- informing about research on Africa and current African issues."

Target groups. In the Nordic countries the Institute's main target groups are the research and education communities, decision-makers and development administrators, representatives of the media and non-governmental organisations. The target groups in Africa are the research and policy making communities.

Core activities. The core activities of the Institute shall be research and research support, policy-related activities, dissemination of information, provision of library services and production of publications.

Networking. The Institute shall promote co-operation and contacts between African and Nordic researchers and other partners by facilitating their interaction and by providing support to networks for collaboration in the Nordic countries and in Africa.

Publications on African cultures

Culture in Africa

An Appeal for Pluralism

Granqvist, Raoul (Ed.)

1993, 204 pp, ISBN: 91-7106-330-7

The essays in this publication range from poetry and drama to church music, architecture, and popular magazines. Common to them is the effort to make the disciplines of arts and those of social sciences meet. African cultural expressions are treated here as anchored in the experiences common to the people of Africa, while the provincial exclusiveness of Afrocentrism is shunned.

Identity and Beyond: Rethinking Africanity

Diagne, Souleymane Bachir; Mana, Amina; Melber, Henning; Nyamjoh, Francis B

2001, 33 pp, ISBN: 91-7106-487-7

This Discussion Paper presents the plenary presentations by the three main speakers during the Nordic Africa Days, with an introduction offering an overview and comment on the various approaches on Gender and Power in African Contexts, Africanity as an Open Question and Rethinking Power in Africa.

Research project: Cultural Images in and of Africa

<http://www.nai.uu.se/forsk/progproj/proj/cult.html>

The project was initiated in 1995 in response to recommendations that the Institute include cultural change into its research priorities and profile. The main objectives are:

1. to encourage new research and studies in the Nordic countries on cultural change and issues in Africa;

2. to create a network of scholars in the Nordic countries and Africa for co-operation and contacts;
3. to contribute to a critical examination of the negative and prejudiced images of Africa in the Nordic countries;
4. to encourage an interest in contemporary African cultural expressions.

The project covers three themes.

H. SHUTTLE 02 A Danish - South African Cultural Exchange 2001- 02

<http://www.dccd.dk/dccd/login.nsf/menu>

Shuttle 02 follows on from a large scale cultural exchange programme initiated by The Nordic Council of Ministers, which ran for a two year period, 1998-99 and which encompassed more than 50 individual exchange projects within dance, theatre, music, literature and photography with South African counterparts. This innovative network based programme proved to be so successful that it generated a number of longer-term exchange and development programmes.

Denmark was responsible for dance and theatre and also initiated half of the music programme, in total managing more than half the total Shuttle 99 programme. Shuttle 02 is the Danish follow up to this initiative and concentrates on dance and music as two vital art forms in the South African cultural heritage and on the South African contemporary scene. In the follow up programme, some 1 major projects are now being developed.

As with Shuttle 99, the philosophy of the programme is to engage specific partners in each country to collaborate on specific exchanges. The projects are not only important for the participants themselves but also indicate new possibilities for especially the dance sector and create new opportunities which are sustainable in the long term.

The aim is not only to support dance as an art form but also to look at how to stimulate dance in education, how to contribute to the re-creation of a culture which acknowledges tradition of dance and music in the contemporary and international context, how to support independent artists as a reflection of an open and developing nation, and finally to initiate intercultural and intentional exchanges as the way forward in a global reality.

Among the Danish partners are the School of Modern Dance, MBT-Dance Theatre, the Rhythmic Music Conservatory, Dance in Education, Tim Feldman/Wilda, New Danish Dance Theatre, Lene Østergaard Project, Roskilde Festival, Danish Union of Scenographers and Lighting Designers, the School at Frederiksbundvej and a number of individual artists and experts a.o. dance researcher Karen Vedel.

The South African partners in Shuttle 02 include : Dance Umbrella Festival (Joburg), Jomba! Contemporary Dance Experience (Durban), Moving into Dance Mophatong (Joburg), Dance Factory (Joburg), Drama Dpt. Wits University, Cultural Helpdesk Arts Administration, Centre for Creative Arts (Natal University), Fantastic Flying Fish Company, South African Roadies Association, Awesome Africa Music Festival, as well as a long list of individual experts, choreographers and musicians.

I. SACOD – Southern African Information and Communication Network

<http://www.sacod.org.za/projects/default.htm>

SACOD's core activity is the networking service that it provides to its members and interest groups both locally and internationally.

The SACOD information and communication network is managed through an audio visual resource centre at the regional office in Johannesburg. The resource centre is currently in development and managed by an Information Officer.

Should you wish to find out more about the this service please contact:

The SACOD Forum 2002 will take place from 21 – 25 October 2002 at Victoria Falls. This is a call for entries for completed films and videos, of any length, produced after 1st January 2000 that support that seek to communicate social messages.

The SACOD Forum is a meeting place where filmmakers, distributors, and related organisations, gather to screen and debate selected film and video productions. The objective of Forum is to enable Directors in the Southern Africa region to make more effective programmes on social issues. The themes cover social, political and developmental issues with the intention to inform, educate, entertain and importantly, to motivate and stimulate audiences to take action in a personal or organised way. The ultimate goal is to make programmes that will be better tools for social change.
