C.3 Jean-Marie Lukunji Kikuni, new Minister of Culture and Arts in the DRC

Seven months after the inauguration of President Felix Tshisekedi, the negotiations have formed the coalition government. It has 76.9% of personalities who have never taken part in a government. In total, this new government includes 66 members: 42 are from the ranks of the Common Front for Congo (FCC), the pro-kabila platform and 23 Forward for Change (Cach).

The post of the Minister of Culture was entrusted to Jean-Marie Lukunji Kikuni who took over on 9 September 2019 his new function from the Acting Minister, Mrs. Astrid Madiya.

According to his statements, ambitious and visionary man, Jean-Marie Lukundji wants to erect a wall against the acts unfavorable to Congolese cultural development. For him, culture without culture would not make sense. As a result, the Ministry of Culture and Arts is supposed to place artists and cultural workers in working conditions that will enable them to support themselves.

C.6 Central African Republic: Arts and Culture - Review by Céline Cabrol

Today, a sad fact is obvious: the Central African culture is "stricken". Yet there are great artists, and in all areas. In the Central African Republic, there is a real confusion between simple craftsmanship and art: professionals as well as the public tend to confuse these three disciplines.

The culture of the country is orphan, with as "adoptive father", the Ministry of Arts, Culture and Tourism without means (headed since March 2019 by the Minister Dieudonné Ndomate), and as "adoptive mother" the French Alliance of Bangui who s 'imposes today as the only cultural center with the means for helping the artists.

There is also another cultural center, the Central African Space Linga Téré which allows artists to meet in artistic residences, to offer courses and performances.

The Central African public is in lack of culture: it is not educated to its own culture and it suffers from the lack of contact with its artists. In CAR, art schools do not exist.

D.1 Culture: Arabesques, the festival that celebrates the "creative explosion" of the Arab world

Confidential at its birth, the Arabesques festival in Montpellier is expecting more than 200,000 visitors, from September 10 to 22, for its fourteenth edition which bears witness to the vigor of the eastern art scene.

Today, we receive more than 200,000 visitors, and the event has become a big machine: a team of fifteen permanent, 110 volunteer activists, a hundred technicians, and a budget of a little less of 600 000 euros.

From September 10 to 22, the festival offers a prestigious program, and all the more attractive as the event is one of the only ones to be interested in this niche in France. Of the thirty shows on offer, some are already outstanding.

D.3 UNESCO: General History of Africa – Achievements and Future Plans

In 1964, UNESCO launched the elaboration of the General History of Africa (GHA) with a view to remedy the general ignorance on Africa's history. The challenge consisted of reconstructing Africa's history, freeing it from racial prejudices ensuing from slave trade and colonization, and promoting an African perspective. UNESCO therefore called upon the then utmost African and non African experts. These experts' work represented 35 years of cooperation between more than 230 historians and other specialists, and was overseen by an International Scientific Committee which comprised two-thirds of Africans.

The General History of Africa (GHA) is a pioneering corpus, unparalleled in its ambition to cover the history of the entire African continent, since the appearance of human beings to contemporary challenges faced by Africans and their Diasporas in the world. It is a history that no longer leaves the pre-colonial period in the shadows and that deeply integrates the destiny of Africa into that of humanity by highlighting its relations with the other continents and the contribution of African cultures to the general progress of humanity.

The complete collection is published in eight volumes. All volumes are richly illustrated with maps, charts, figures and diagrams and a selection of black and white photographs. The texts, for the most part, are fully annotated and there is an extensive bibliography and index.

In recent years, UNESCO has embarked on the preparation and drafting of three new volumes of the GHA (Volumes IX, X and XI) in order to update and complete the collection. This work aims: to update the collection in the light of the latest social, political and archaeological developments, among others, on the continent (Volume IX); to map and analyse the various African diasporas and their contributions to modern societies and to Africa's emancipation and development (Volume X); and to contribute to the analysis of new challenges Africa and its diasporas are currently facing, and new opportunities that are open to them (Volume XI).

D.4 Digital Economy Report 2019 by UNCTAD

The first edition of this report of the United Nations Conference on Trade & Development (previously known as the Information Economy Report) examines the scope for value creation in the digital economy by developing countries. It gives special attention to opportunities for these countries to take advantage of the data-driven economy as producers and innovators notably with regard to digital data and digital platforms.

Digital advances have already led to the creation of enormous wealth in record time, but this is highly concentrated in a small number of countries, companies and individuals. Meanwhile, digitalization has also given rise to fundamental challenges for policymakers in countries at all levels of development. The Report presents recent trends and discusses key policies for value creation and capture in the digital economy, notably with regards to entrepreneurship, data, trade, competition, taxation, intellectual property and employment.

D.5 Europe: A human enterprise - 30 stories for 70 years of European history 1949-2019

Founded in Strasbourg in 1949 to unite a continent ravaged by war, the Council of Europe has built a vast area of democratic security that protects 830 million people in 47 countries. Its core objective is preserving and promoting human rights, democracy and the rule of law.

This book covers 70 years of history, during which Europe has changed profoundly, and changed for the better. The continent, which was in ruins after the Second World War, found the energy to rise up out of the ashes. The contributions here go back over the highlights of this common history, from the creation of the European flag to the management of democratic and humanitarian crises, through the enlargement to east European countries.

Written by individuals who have worked for, or closely with, the Organisation, it paints a vivid picture of what the Council of Europe has stood for since 1949, and of the values which it must continue to champion to keep the European ideal alive in people's hearts and minds.

South Africa: Gauteng Hosting the Heritage Carnival as Part of Heritage Day

The recognition, reflection and celebration of heritage origins is important for nation-building and social cohesion. September is Heritage month in South Africa, a moment to appreciate shared heritage whilst embracing our diverse nationalities, languages, cultures, religions, orientation, fashion and more. The 24th September 2019 marks Heritage Day. To celebrate Heritage Day, the Gauteng Heritage Carnival makes a return for its 14th edition. Over 30 000 people will descend the streets of Tshwane in Pretoria, for a parade showcasing their heritage in music, dance, fashion and the arts. The carnival will further create an opportunity for all of us to reflect on the liberation heritage route in Tshwane. This year's theme is "Celebrating South Africa's literary classics in the year of indigenous languages". The theme is in line with the 2019 UNESCO declaration: "The International Year of Indigenous Languages". This is aimed at affording the international community to develop, promote and collectively celebrate indigenous languages. <https://allafrica.com/stories/201909120321.html>

Kenya: Labour of Love that Led to the Birth of Nairobi Museum

The Nairobi National Museum was created originally in a smaller building in 1910. It moved to a bigger, more permanent structure in 1922 and again in September 1930 under the name Coryndon Memorial Museum built on the Museum Hill. It was there that Dr Louis S.B. Leakey and his wife Mary, who were excavating fossils in East Africa, were provided with storage and working space in the new study rooms for his collection of archaeological and paleontological specimens. The current building, Coryndon Memorial Hall, continued to expand in subsequent years. By 1945, it housed the herbarium, ornithology, entomology, mammalogy and ethnology sections. Special fund kitties were set up to add more extensions, including five new halls, which were officially opened by Sir Evelyn Baring in 1953. After independence, the Museum renamed National Museum in 1964 and Nairobi National Museum, had further extensions made to the exhibition hall until 2005, when the museum closed its doors to the public for a first major renovation. It reopened on June 2008. <https://allafrica.com/stories/201909020138.html>

F.1 News from the International Federation of Arts Councils and Cultural Agencies (IFACCA – ACORNS)

Headlines

This month the headlines highlight policy challenges presented by the digital age; and how governments and intergovernmental organizations are responding to them.

The United Nations Conference on Trade & Development released the first edition of its Digital Economy Report 2019, which presents recent policies for value creation and capture in the digital economy. The African Union held which seeks to address issues of policy making and regulation in relation to digital transformation across the continent. Meanwhile, UNESCO has announced a renewed commitment with Japan to cooperate on artificial intelligence and cultural diversity. The policy challenges – and opportunities – presented by the digital age are also at the fore of our thinking at the moment as we begin work on our new report Supporting Culture in the Digital Age. The report will consider key issues related to technology and digitalization that affect the sector; show how policy makers around the world address these issues; identify the limits of existing knowledge; and determine opportunities for development. An exclusive extended version of the report will be published in 2020.

World Spent $8 Billion on New Cultural Institutions in 2018, Report Says

North America leads in the number of newly completed or announced art museums and other cultural projects, but Asia is catching up with the world's costliest constructions. Culture is not dead. At least not according to the astronomical figures outlined in the third annual Cultural Infrastructure Index, a report that charts investments in new art museums and cultural institutions worldwide. In 2018, a total of $8 billion was spent on the construction of 148 new museums and cultural institutions across the globe, the report says. North America leads the list of announced or completed projects, but China hosts the most expensive projects. In other news, Europe has cut back on their investments, while New Zealand and Australia have shown an increase in new projects. The report, assembled and published by the global consulting firm AEA Consulting, focuses on projects with a budget of $10 million or more that were publicly announced or completed within a calendar year. Those include museums, performing arts centers, and cultural hubs or districts. The report tracks investments in new buildings. ### European Agenda for Musique

The European Agenda for Music produced by the European Music Council is a resource for advocacy to promote the largest number of voices of the music sector in Europe to engage in a dialogue with the European Commission and the civil society. Strongly engaged in the development of musical practice in France and member of the International Music Council, the Plate-forme Interrégionale has taken the initiative to translate the European Agenda for Music into French to make it accessible to all. Presented on 5th of September in the frame of the Creative Europe Days in Paris, the Agenda is divided into 9 themes. It is a reference and a tool that gives a vision of the uses and practices of music, to foster dialogue, evaluate and improve practices, education and creation, encourage cooperation, influence the evolution of the sector and funding for music... <https://www.emc-imc.org/cultural-policy/european-agenda-for-music/>.

F.5 JMI Position Paper on EU Commissioners' Portfolios

The new redistribution of the Commissioner-designate portfolios proposed by Von Ms Van der Leyen does not explicitly include culture in any of the titles of the college of Commissioners, while in parallel, actions related to the promotion of the European cultural values are allocated to different portfolios. Finally, the name of the Commissioner Schinas' portfolio "Protecting the European Way of Life" is "more than original", as pointed out also by the President of the European Parliament Mr. Sassoli.

In some specific cases the wording is substance, and the title of the Commissaries' portfolios is one of these cases. Since MEPs are going to assess commissioner in a series of public hearings, we call them to

1. Reintroduce the specific "Innovation and Youth" portfolio with the Culture and Education wording for giving due emphasis the Commission's commitment to European Agenda for Culture.
2. Empower the currently named "Innovation and Youth" portfolio with oversight and coordination functions that will create synergies oach to the development of European cultural values in the EU.
3. Rather than "Protecting the European Way of Life", reintroduce a positive approach to the promotion and the further enhancement of the European values of equality, integration and multiculturalism.
